on view: – the second round. We are very pleased to continue our exhibition series this fall in cooperation with students and graduates of UdK Berlin.

What is the focus of our next generation of artists and which ways of expressing themselves do they choose? What impact does the environment of the university and the professors actually have on the student's artistic development?

on view: shows selected works, including (site-specific) installations, painting and photography of nine students and master students of the classes Prof. Christine Streuli and Prof. Thomas Zipp – nine talents characterized by different artistic questions and approaches.

The annual exhibition series on view: at galerie burster offers art students a presentation platform outside the academic context, allowing them to take an easy step onto the art market and simultaneously giving us a fresh view on the next and upcoming generation of artists.
